The Centre for English Language Teaching Materials at IFA UAM together with Cambridge University Press have the honour and pleasure to invite the IFA students, EFL teachers and anyone interested to the presentation by

Gillie Cunningham,
the renowned UK-based EFL teacher, teacher trainer and materials writer.

The presentation will take place on 17th April 2007, 10.00 am

Venue: C1 Lecture Hall

Our guest, Gillie Cunningham will give a presentation on:

Memory: if students can't remember it, forget it!

Gillie Cunningham will look at how teachers can best help improve students' ability to remember what they learn, both in and outside of class. With the help of conference participants she will explore theories of how memory works. Then drawing on her own teaching experience she will focus on techniques that teachers and students can employ at various stages of a lesson, or series of lessons, to ensure that language which has been recently taught/learnt is stored in the long term memory and not immediately forgotten.

About our speaker:

Gillie Cunningham has been in ELT since 1973, working mainly for International House and the Bell Educational Trust as a teacher and a teacher trainer. She has also been closely involved with the Cambridge ESOL DELTA examinations. She wrote the Teacher's Books and Workbooks for various ELT courses. She is also the co-author, with Chris Redston, of Cambridge University Press’s new adult course face2face.

All BA and MA students, EFL teachers, and everyone concerned about their professional development are cordially invited!!!
