

CAELL repeat credit test, MA3 extramurals, 21/02/2009
Circle the best answer

1. Computer-mediated text chat during lectures can be used for:

- (a) multimedia upload,
- (b) podcasting,
- (c) video-clip viewing,
- (d) back-channeling,
- (e) hypertexting.

2. Common collocations can be quickly found in text by:

- (a) visually inspecting it,
- (b) deriving an alphabetic word-list from it,
- (c) hyperlinking it,
- (d) concordancing it,
- (e) reconstructing it.

3. The main screen in most e-dictionaries:

- (a) is a replica of a printed dictionary page,
- (b) contains a few separate windows,
- (c) shows the title page, with authors and editors,
- (d) only contains a key-word entry window,
- (e) shows a network of lexical relations.

4. Speech-oriented dedicated CAELL programs often:

- (a) show sound-wave graphs,
- (b) are completely online,
- (c) use the grammar-translation method,
- (d) use speech synthesis,
- (e) use non-native speech recordings.

5. CALL in the USA started on:

- (a) ZX Spectrum,
- (b) Commodore,
- (c) IBM PC,
- (d) Apple,
- (e) mainframes.

6. Speech-to-speech machine translation:

- (a) is not yet feasible,
- (b) works well across all genres,
- (c) threatens EFL teacher jobs,
- (d) requires land phones,
- (e) requires mobile phones.

7. Listservs are used for:

- (a) video-clip hosting (e.g. YouTube),
- (b) photo hosting (e.g. Flickr),
- (c) community portals (e.g. Nasza Klasa),
- (d) synchronous chat (e.g. GaduGadu),
- (e) asynchronous email discussions.

Best answers: 1d, 2d, 3b, 4a, 5e, 6c, 7e.